IN THE ABSTRACT:

Please replace the abstract with the following.

Using a distillation separator, a gas to be treated is separated into a plurality of gas groups having different boiling points. Then, the specific gases included in each of the plurality of gas groups separated at the first separating means separator and having similar oiling boiling points are separated using a chromatographic separator. In this manner, specific gases can be separated from the gas to be treated containing a plurality of specific gases.--